

Why?

- Wellness centres such as Spa's are often located in hotels, clients are often international and English is used as a common language for communication between the client and beautician.
- Many courses in the tourist sector are aimed at hospitality jobs, covering roles such as Reception and Restaurant staff.
- Many migrant workers can speak every-day conversational English, but do not have the technical English required when giving treatments in a Spa.

What will we produce?

- A training tool, including videos and exercises to completed covering the four pillars of language: speaking, writing, reading and listening
